

CV Enrique Rodilla Sala

Born February 16th 1962, in Valencia, Spain. Medicine studies at the Georg-August University of Göttingen, Germany 1980 -1986. Doctoral thesis 1989 in the Department of Nephrology, Uniklinikum Göttingen, Germany, (subject: secondary hyperparathyroidism). Post-doctoral research at the Max-Planck Institute for Experimental Medicine between 1986 – 1989 (Subject: protein-chemistry and sequencing of peptides). Specialization in Internal Medicine MNR-University Klink Düsseldorf 1989 – 1995. Since 1998 Head of the Hypertension Unit, Internal Medicine, University Hospital of Sagunto, Spain. Associate professor at the University Cardenal Herrera, Castellón, Spain, teaching Internal Medicine. Memberships in the SEHLEHLA (Sociedad Española de Hipertensión y Liga Española para la Lucha contra la Hipertensión), ESH (European Society of Hypertension) and ARTERY Society. Areas of research: subclinical target organ damage, especially microalbuminuria and left ventricular hypertrophy. Vascular damage has been during the last years the main field of research activity. Leader of the Group of Cardiovascular Echography in the SEMI (Spanish Society of Internal Medicine).